Media ecology theory is the study of media, technology, and communication and how they affect human environments. The theoretical concepts were proposed by Marshall McLuhan in 1964, while the term media ecology was first formally introduced by Neil Postman in 1968.. Ecology in this context refers to the environment in which the medium is used “ what they are and how they affect society.

The pollination ecology of Banksia has been well studied, because the large showy inflorescences make it easy to conduct pollination experiments, and the pollination roles of nectariferous birds and mammals makes the genus a popular subject for zoologists.. Visits to Banksia inflorescences by western honeybees and nectariferous birds are often observed and are obviously important to pollination.
