Transistor logic (TTL) is a logic family built from bipolar junction transistors. Its name signifies that transistors perform both the logic function (the first "transistor") and the amplifying function (the second "transistor"); it is the same naming convention used in resistor logic (RTL) and diode-transistor logic (DTL). ...

Fluidics, or fluidic logic, is the use of a fluid to perform analog or digital operations similar to those performed with electronics. The physical basis of fluidics is pneumatics and hydraulics, based on the theoretical foundation of fluid dynamics. The term fluidics is normally used when devices have no moving parts, so ordinary hydraulic components such as hydraulic cylinders and spool ...

Several test elements use JMeter properties to control their behaviour. These properties are normally resolved when the class is loaded. This generally occurs before the test plan starts, so it's not possible to change the settings by using the `__setProperty()` function.

7 Creating Unified Application Logic A workflow-based application created using WF does the same kinds of things as an ordinary application: It maintains state, gets input from and sends output to the outside

Applications requiring coordination of functionally different relay elements should be avoided. If these applications cannot be avoided, the coordination should be studied and tested thoroughly.
